Young Nerds of Color Panel Discussion with the Producers and Cast Members

Young Nerds of Color is a play based on interviews with scientists from diverse backgrounds: people of color, women, ethnic minorities and people from low income families. This panel will raise important questions at the intersection of science and social value with which we are all asked to engage: What challenges should science tackle now, and how? Why is diversity in professional science important? Who are the people who open doors or get in the way when we try to diversify science?
